

Where Resilience and Culture Meet: Exploring Intersections of Wellbeing, Accessibility and Community

WITH OUR GUEST PARTNERS - ROM COMMUNITY ACCESS NETWORK AND KINGSTON COMMUNITY HEALTH CENTRES

Cultural heritage is so much more than a recreational past time, but offering real impacts and implications for health and wellbeing within our communities. This event explores how resiliency, wellbeing, community, and cultural heritage intersect. We begin with a film screening Resilience: The Biology of Stress and the Science of Hope, followed by a panel discussion and Q&A with guest partners discussing their work in building community connections through engagement, trauma-informed practices and social prescription.

Please register to attend on the link below. This event is FREE to all participants. KAM looks forward to sharing best practices and learning together.

Our Panel Presenters

Jaclyn Qua-Hiansen (she/her) is the Manager of Community Engagement and Lifelong Learning at ROM. She manages the ROM Community Access Network (ROMCAN), where ROM works with over 100 community partners to provide free museum visits and co-created, collaborative programming that directly meets the needs of vulnerable communities. She also manages the development and creation of learning programming and resources, with the goal of enhancing the museum's role as a lifelong learning resource that creates meaningful impacts in people's lives. Jaclyn also supports other departments across the museum to break down barriers to engagement, and create inclusive and welcoming museum experiences.
